Hello mummy, here I have some words about my learning in Phugmoche School during my eleven years of early age. First, I want to remember Phugmoche School as one of the most exceptional schools compared to any other schools in the world.

The reason behind this is, I gained not only the bookish knowledge but also I learnt the manner that helps to shape someone's personality for the future. Phugmoche taught me how to respect your parents, your teachers and all people who are around you, no matter what cast they are or which religion they follow. The bond between teachers and students of Phugmoche, you will not find in any other place on earth, because the respect and the intimacy between these two are so real and pure.

Phugmoche also taught me how to accept, respect and deal with the various abilities, thoughts or culture of each different individual since we lived there with people from different culture and background, and shared the same dining room, hostel and classes without any problem. Fair to say, there are many schools that produce talented, smart and very intelligent students, but in terms of honesty, discipline, respectfulness, good manners, Phugmoche surely gives those qualities to each students out there. I personally feel that I experienced the most meaningful life there in my early eleven years of stay in Phugmoche. I met good people like you (Anneliese), who keep supporting those poor, orphaned and backwarded students from all the communities, without expecting any returns from them, it really is an amazing thing to remember.

If you are sending my message to the students over there, I would like to say Hello to all of them, and I suggest them to feel lucky to have a school like Phugmoche and to have facilities as provided by Phugmoche. And I encourage them to always dream big, no matter where they are. It sounds strange, but dreams are the power that will lead you to where you want to be in the future. Always be thankful to your teachers, to all the supporters and donors of Phugmoche, do utilise this opportunity of being a student of Phugmoche, and keep doing best. 🙏🙏🙏
